

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

10 Years of Pan African Television and the Birthday of Comrade Kwesi Pratt Jnr

To Comrade Kwesi Pratt Jnr and the entire Pan African Television family,

The Pan African Progressive Front (PPF) salutes Pan African Television on 10 years of unbroken struggle to put African questions before African eyes. Ten years is not a mere calendar mark. For a Pan African media institution built inside a global information order still dominated by imperial narratives, it is 10 years of refusing to let others narrate our continent for us.

Young as the Pan-African Progressive Front is in the struggle, our alliance with Pan African Television has already shown what disciplined Pan African cooperation can achieve. At our recent conference marking the 80th Anniversary of the Historic Manchester Congress, Pan African Television did not stand outside the room as an observer. You were a major partner in bringing the discussions, ideas and voices of that gathering to a much wider African and international audience.

This is Pan African solidarity in practice, not in slogan. Pan African TV has built a platform where sovereignty, justice, reparations and the liberation of the continent's political and economic life are debated on African terms. That platform is indispensable while the fight for Africa's intellectual and political independence remains unfinished.

Today we also honour the founder of that platform, Comrade Kwesi Pratt Jnr, on his birthday. A birthday marks the life of a fighter. An anniversary marks the life of an institution built by that fighter's conviction. One person's commitment to the African cause gave rise to a platform now heard far beyond the room where it began.

Comrade Pratt, we honour your decades of principled journalism and your unwavering commitment to African sovereignty, justice and self-determination. As our work continues, the Pan-African Progressive Front recommits to strengthening this alliance, because the liberation of Africa demands not only mobilisation in the streets but media capable of carrying African ideas, African history and African demands to the people.

Ten years behind. A harder chapter ahead. May Pan African Television grow in strength and reach while remaining faithful to the principles that built it, and may Comrade Kwesi Pratt Jnr be granted many more years of strength and purposeful service to the African cause.

Happy 10th Anniversary to Pan African Television.

Happy Birthday, Comrade Pratt.

In the spirit of African emancipation,

Pan African Progressive Front
